

Old stories from the young

The power and value of people talking across generations to learn from each other can never be overstated. This book is a living history of people and a tangible outcome of an amazing project. When Ascham girls were visiting older people as part of the Holdsworth Volunteer Program, it was realised that there were many interesting tales to tell. So began the 'book project' which led to thirty one interviews being conducted, recorded and written up. There are stories of wartime Europe, conflicts closer to home, happy times in pre-war Sydney, fascinating careers, the pleasures found in travel, music and grandchildren and the warmth of long-lasting relationships. Whether they travelled across continents to get here or grew up just around the corner, each one of these everyday, but never ordinary people has a story.
